

Position Description

Student:

University: University of California-Berkeley

Internship Site: Swamp Motel

Internship Field: Creative Production Marketing

Company Profile:

Swamp are multi-award-winning theatre makers and experience creators, using their unique expertise to build immersive worlds for brands and audiences.

We have built shows and experiences for stage, screen and live events. Swamp's unique theatrical skill set in the world of immersive and experiential marketing offers creative thinking, audience understanding and narrative heft.

Swamp operates both as a creative agency and production house, working independently or partnering with you to bring a range of experiences, shows and brand activation's to life.

What does the role involve?

The internship would involve a broad range of roles and responsibilities. During non-production weeks it would be admin focused assisting with the day to day running of the organisation. During production weeks and live events it would involve everything from creative production/design assistant duties to being a runner.

What support will I be given?

The internship will involve working in close proximity with the creative and managing directors. It will combine practical, creative production with the running of a growing start up.

What benefits can I expect to gain from the experience?

You will get first hand experience of a fast-moving start up as well as hands-on experience in the world of creative production.

What skills or experience do I need?

We are looking for a highly-motivated self-starter with an appetite to grow and learn in a start-up environment where no day is the same.

You will be creatively minded but also have the tenacity to take on various office and business related roles that will help move Swamp Motel forward.

An understanding of immersive theatre and the world of brand and PR activation is also very important.
